All the details have been completed for the citizens' reception and house-warming tomorrow night in No. Il police station, at Nichols avenue and Chicago street. A platform will be erected in the main office for the speakers. The visitors will be seated on the first floor. The upper story of the building will be used for the serving of refreshments. Business will be practically suspended in the office of the station during the proceedings. The Annaostia Citizens' Association has extended a general invitation to citizens to attend.

The old frame buildings on the east side of Nichols avenue, utilized in connection with the poultry yards of the Government Insane Asylum, have been razed. The fowls that were kept there have been removed to Godding Croft, Prince Gorge county, Md.

Synopsis of Chapters Already Published

An unknown young man breaks into a bank. He finds the combination is the name of one of its depositors H. Stantelsh Storme. He has stuffed his pockets with money when he hears the police coming. Some time before the robbery Storme kalls upon Miss Helen Dumont. He tells her he loves her, but says there is something he must tell her before he could ask her to many him. He asks her what she has in:and about him.
